What

Eat Right Restaurant and Winebar. A newly renovated health spot for those watching their figure.

Where

Somewhere between old thrift shops, art galleries and fashion boutiques in Hong Kong's popular Soho district.

Who

Homegrown commercial interior design studio, Liquid Interiors Ltd.

Why

Because on a street filled with a constant turnover of flashy restaurants and pubs, Eat Right needed to create a look that would attract more than just the health conscious from the neighbouring gym.

How

By going green and making the most of what was already there. Liquid based its design approach on reusing and uncovering material rather than adding. Exposing raw concrete columns, reusing the existing wood flooring and touching up old furniture. The black stone-and-steel decor is accented by a living graffiti installation and colourful pop paintings to draw art enthusiasts, organic-food-lovers, green-conscious crowds to the cosy, loft-like venue.
